Excerpt from The Dover (N. H.) Physicians: Read Before the N. H. Medical Society, June 17, 1879

The following sketch of the Physicians of Dover, N. H., is designed to embrace the name of every regular physician who has practiced in Dover, whenever existing records have preserved a trace. The names are arranged in the supposed order of settlement, and the date prefixed to each indicates the earliest year in which the physician is known to have been in practice in Dover.

1631. Dr. Renald Fernald, sent out to New Hampshire by Capt. John Mason, of England, in 1631, was the first physician and surgeon among the New Hampshire settlers. He resided at Portsmouth, N. H., but was only five miles below the settlement at Hiltons (now Dover) Point. He was undoubtedly physician to the Dover settlement till his death in 1656.

1684. Dr. John Buss was born in 1640, and was an educated physician. He began the practice of medicine at Wells, Me., in 1672, and, although it does not appear that he was ever ordained, preached to that people, in addition to his medical practice. In 1684 he moved to Dover, and settled in the Oyster River parish; practiced medicine and preached in that parish till 1718, when he retired. In the attack upon the Oyster River parish by the Indians, 18 July, 1694, his house, with a valuable library, was destroyed by fire; he was absent at the time, and his wife and children fled to the woods. The parish of Oyster River became the town of Durham in 1732; he died in Durham in 1736.

1717. Dr. Thomas Alden was practicing in Dover as early as Dec. 28, 1717, when he witnessed the will of Judge John Tuttle. He was surgeon in 1722 to a company of soldiers that cut a road from Dover to Lake Winnipisaukee; and had land laid out to him, July 4, 1723, by the town of Dover.
