

The Magnetically Dipolarized Christmas Tree Light-Sail Smorgasbord. Notes On Novel Light-Sail Propulsion Methods. Volume 15.

In this series of volumes, we present yet additional propulsion modes. The two new modes are part of a more general bipartite mode for which the atomic, nuclear, and hadronic constituents of a light sail spacecraft would be highly magnetized by some unspecified mechanism that causes these three aspects to take on quickly adjustable, non-zero, and highly aligned, magnetic dipole moments so as to induce the spacecraft and sail to become an immediately adjustable high intensity permanent magnet. Any other magnetically dipolarizable spacecraft components or materials of construction such as quarkoniums, higgsiniums, so-called mono-higgsiniums, and the like can also be included in this propulsion mode. The magnetized field would be adjusted so that the spacecraft would be pulled on by the universal background magnetic fields in a gainful manner.
