

This book is the culmination of a long-time desire to find specific and detailed information which can be used to help arrowhead collectors in the northern California, northern Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Idaho areas to identify the many finely made ancient and authentic types of stone arrowheads which have long been found in the Pacific Northwest. It gathers descriptive information and combines this with photographs of examples of the various point types, all to help the casual collector and the serious hobbyist to understand stone projectile points which he or she sees and finds. It is an arrowhead collectors guide to type identification of the stone projectile points of the Pacific Northwest.
